SUSTAINABILITY

Resource Revolution offers a deep working knowledge of sustainability as defined by the triple bottom line, that is, people, planet and profit.

EXPERIENCE

With more than 25 years of experience working with government, local businesses, manufacturers and environmental issues, Steve Lautze proves a valuable addition to any team.

INNOVATION

Resource Revolution is dedicated to the innovations it will take in manufacturing, government and business in order to establish and maintain a truly circular economy.

Resource Revolution is a professional consultation service owned and operated by Steve Lautze. Resource Revolution is currently located in Berkeley, California and is currently operating in the wider Bay Area with ambitions to eventually serve the wider State of California. Steve Lautze has extensive experience aiding business' and nonprofit organizations of every scale manage their relationships with local, state and federal government with the intent to make the practice of recycling and reuse not only sustainable environmentally, but advantageous economically.

Resource Revolution offers a depth of experience in environmental issues, manufacturing and government agencies and policy, all of which they use in order to bring about a sustainability that centers businesses and manufacturers as central to a well-functioning circular economy.
